2. The revolving restaurant at the property

3. When in Palampur, do not forget to go paragliding

A Himalayan pit stop

You won't realise you are in a revolving restaurant till you look up and out of its huge glass windows about 10 minutes into hogging the delicious food. Wasn't there a tree right there? How has it shifted to the right — or is it to the left? That's when you notice the circular base of the restaurant — named Cloud 7 — rotating oh-so-slowly. No, you won't feel giddy, just amazed at how many surprises this unassuming hill town throws up. Hike, glide, trek or just stop and watch life rushing past. At the postcard-pretty hill station of Palampur, choices are aplenty. A quaint town in the Kangra Valley, Palampur is surrounded by tea gardens and pine forests at the foothills of the mighty Dhauladhar range.

For me, it was supposed to be an extended weekend away from the city. And my hotel, RS Sarovar Portico - home to Cloud 7 -, added to my experience. The hotel is a unique property in the heart of the town, with each of its 43 rooms offering a USP of its own. One of its rooms, in fact, has a distinct duplex-like feel! There's a ladder that takes you straight to the upper tier of the room, which is equipped with a comfortable bed and a set-up of its own. This is not to say that the other rooms don't give it a fair fight. But nothing beats the experience of sitting out on the Terrace restaurant with a drink, tucking into the many savouries the chef serves up, all the while taking in the view of snow-capped mountains. It's a calm you'll never experience in the city.
